The observable universe is estimated to be 93 billion light-years across. A single light-year is 5.88 trillion miles.

The sun's energy output is equivalent to the detonation of 1 trillion megaton bombs per second.

The universe operates under precise constants (e.g., gravity, speed of light). If the gravitational force were altered by just 1 part in 10^{60} , life would be impossible.

The human brain contains about 86 billion neurons, each capable of forming thousands of connections. The number of neural connections in a brain exceeds the number of stars in the Milky Way.

A hummingbird's heart beats up to 1,260 times per minute. It weighs less than a penny, yet can migrate over 1,200 miles without stopping.

Earth's 23.5-degree tilt allows seasons to occur. Without this tilt, parts of the planet would be too hot or too cold for life.

These are but the outer fringe of his works; how faint the whisper we hear of him! Who then can understand the thunder of his power?"

Jeremiah 31:3
